

CORONAVIRUS PANIC-DEMIC

Today, the day I am writing this, is Thursday, March 12, 2020. We are in the middle of the Coronavirus panic, with our shelves being wiped out of bathroom tissue, virtually all disinfecting items like Lysol Spray, Clorox Cleaners, Lysol and Clorox Disinfecting Hand Wipes, Hand Sanitizers, and more.

Reluctantly we have had to pull any remaining inventory of those items off the shelf, add to them the few dribbles we are receiving from our grocery and hardware wholesalers, and placing them behind a counter to allocate them to customers so that no one person can come wipe out the whole shelf of something. We have also placed limits on the purchase of bathroom tissue, rubbing alcohol, and peroxide, again to allocate them more fairly, and because at this time, we cannot replace them.

In the background, we are watching inventory levels of these items at our wholesalers, spending hours identifying and ordering items for future dates, hoping that we might hit a small jackpot of some delivery that hasn't been scarfed up by other stores before we get a chance. And UNFI, the wholesaler I love to dislike, has done a good job of putting out information about stock levels, allocations, when to expect more of various items, etc. I appreciate that.

We thought we had 25 cases of hand sanitizer ordered and reserved for next week, but as I suspected might happen, the big buy that UNFI thought they had tied down disappeared when the manufacturer had to allocate all of their production to the government. Purell, the major brand of hand sanitizer in retail stores, is allocating most of their production to the medical field. They make our store brand, Equaline, so that means we won't be able to get that before mid-April at the earliest.

We will continue to do our best to bring the items you need and want to this store.

Now for some perspective from two of my heroes:

The Demos' 2020 Economic Doom Platform — WuFlu Apocalypse

Mark Alexander, The Patriot Post March 11, 2020

The political and media echo chambers have put their "fear pandemic" narrative in extra-high gear — with inexcusable dire collateral consequences for American workers and their families. . . . Sensible preparation for a natural or manmade crisis is important, because the more prepared we are individually, the more assistance we can render to our neighbors and communities. . . . That has always been my preparedness objective. National preparedness begins with individual preparedness, and individual preparedness is the firewall against a "fear pandemic" of the type that is currently sweeping the nation. . . . Regarding the dramatic daily revisions for coronavirus infections and deaths, typical of the failure to connect increased testing with increased diagnosis was this assertion today: "Once the government began testing, cases exploded." In other words, the dramatic increase in diagnosed cases is not just a reflection of how contagions spread but also related to increased testing — the more testing, the more cases discovered. . . .

So, who are the "fear pandemic" profiteers? First would be the floor traders on Wall Street who reap huge profits on equity-market swings. . . . Second would be the mainstream-media opportunists who reap huge advertising revenues on endless loops of click-bait crisis churn. . . . And third, the worst of the profiteers are the politicians who inevitably pad their political fortunes and futures by fomenting fear. . . . there is no question about the fact that Democrat Party principals Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) and Chuck Schumer (D-NY) are doing what Democrats do best — using the misery of others as fodder for their political agenda. . . .

The Pelosi/Schumer "viral panic" narrative, dutifully repeated by the media ad nauseam, is intentionally undermining consumer and business confidence and, by extension, clobbering "the financial security of America's families" by undermining the administration and fomenting fear — and that is precisely the leftist strategy. . . . Thus, the consequence of the Pelosi/Schumer political games: Caught in the crossfire are tens of millions of American workers and their families, whose jobs and income prospects will fall victim to the Demos' politically induced recession — the direct result of having thrown economic confidence and stability under the bus in order to attack Trump. . . .

Contrary to the assessment of Pelosi and Schumer nationally as their fear pandemic spreads coast to coast, in the most leftist state in the union, California, the most leftist governor in the nation, Gavin Newsom, offered an entirely different assessment of the Trump administration's response. Asked about the repatriation of cruise ship refugees afloat off the coast of California, Newsom said that Trump had declared, "We're gonna do the right thing," and "you have my support, all of our support, logistically and otherwise."

According to Newsom: "President Trump said everything that I could have hoped for, and we had a very long conversation and every single thing that he said, they followed through on.

Every single thing his administration said — and it starts at the top, including the vice president — has been consistent with the expectation that we'd repatriate these passengers and we'd do it in a way that does justice to the spirit that defines the best of our country and the state of California." . . .

And more accurately regarding the administration's overall response, former Sen. Jim Talent (R-MO) observed how quickly and effectively the administration has responded: "I have participated in tabletop exercises involving pandemic response. . . . Trump's style of leadership is on balance a plus in this kind of a crisis. He is neither afraid to make decisions nor overly concerned about being criticized for the decisions he makes. That is vital."

Amir Tsarfati, one of my favorite Bible teachers, believes that this is a manmade virus, and he tweeted this:

Amir Tsarfati @BeholdIsrael · 14h

I will try to be very careful yet still say it: whoever created this virus is delighted to see the way the US media and the Democrats are attacking Trump. This hysteria is part of the plan. We are witnessing an evil plot of principalities, powers, and rulers of the darkness! Pray Amir also encouraged us to read John 14. Excerpts: "Let not your hearts be troubled. Believe in God; believe also in me. . . . And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Helper, to be with you forever, even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. You know him, for he dwells with you and will be in you. . . . Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. Not as the world gives do I give to you. Let not your hearts be troubled, neither let them be afraid.

Believe what Jesus promised! Live your faith! And don't let the bums get you down.
